MOTIVE B1 DEUTSCH AUFLERUNG UND TECHNISCHE KOMBINATION UND KOMPONIERTE. DEUTSCH AUFLERUNG UND TECHNISCHE KOMBINATION UND. Modern computerized devices, such as personal computers, personal digital assistants, mobile phones, pagers and the like, generally require one or more interconnections to peripheral devices such as printers, scanners and/or other similar devices. In general, the peripheral devices operate in accordance with their respective communication protocols to provide data and control signals to the computerized device. In general, a host computer provides the computerized device with data, software and processing power. One of the most common methods for providing communication between a host computer and a peripheral device is the Universal Serial Bus (USB) specification. The USB specification allows for the connection of peripherals such as a USB keyboard, USB mouse, USB joystick, USB printer, USB scanner, USB memory sticks, USB speaker, USB microphone and others. The USB specification allows peripherals to be multiplexed onto the USB bus, and then to be individually configured through an open protocol using the Device Class mechanism.

Such configurations include the configuration of a USB keyboard, the configuration of a USB mouse, the configuration of a USB speaker, the configuration of a USB microphone, the configuration of a USB printer and others. The USB specification allows for bus mastering devices such as the USB host controller to suspend, resume and put a device in suspend mode on the USB bus. Host software to implement suspend and resume operations of USB devices is usually provided by using driver software. In suspend and resume operations, the USB device temporarily becomes unplugged from the host, and does not have power from the USB bus. In the unplugged state, the USB device is put to sleep with reduced activity or to a suspended mode with no activity. The USB device resuming in the unplugged state can result in power outage or state confusion. For example, a USB mouse on a notebook computer may not respond after the laptop is suspended. After the USB host device is reconfigured into the plugged state, the USB device resumes and is effectively returned to the plugged state.

There are a variety of reasons why a USB device would like to execute suspend operations when it is in the unplugged state. For example, USB peripheral devices may want to be able to execute suspend operations at the host when the host is in suspend mode.
