A: Quitting and re-opening the application worked! I'm not sure why it didn't work previously but it did on three different computers. Browser Signing - theuncagedince ===== sanjialpratik somehow its difficult to explain you to someone and then seeing the exact exact thing in a browser that automatically works as intended in a section that you did not explain. ~~~ bryanh Yeah. It's like telling a kid to stop playing with matches and then having him walk across the room and fling himself into a wall. ----- gcp I'm confused. What exactly is the 'final target client'? Is it the final client, or the client that buys the software? ~~~ X-lstence The final target client is the client that receives and stores the software (a base64 encoded version of the software) and then retrieves and runs the software. Essentially it is a signing key that the client (or user) can provide. Once the software has been signed the client is able to verify that the signed version of the software is correct. ----- blaines The title should be more accurately title "Browser Signing of an Encoded Executable". The idea is to not have to distribute the actual executable (it is only a syntactic level change), but still do the signing so nobody can mess with the code in transit. ----- magnusgraviti I was going to ask a "why" question but this tutorial left me more confused than ever. ~~~ theuncagedince I'm not a html or security expert, but I thought it was a useful reference and linked it to a blog post which I thought was helpful. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a package, and in particular to a package used for housing a semiconductor chip. 2. Description of Related Art In modern semiconductor industry, the basic unit of a semiconductor chip is becoming smaller and smaller. Therefore, the sizes of a chip package and an electronic device using the package for housing the chip are also gradually becoming smaller. In a conventional package, the package may be
