Association of ambient particulate matter with hospitalization due to respiratory causes in the largest city in Brazil. The present study investigated the effects of fine and ultrafine particulate matter on hospital admissions due to respiratory conditions in a large Brazilian megacity, São Paulo, Brazil. Daily time series of daily mean concentrations of PM_{2.5} and PM₁₀ and daily mean of daily mean of daily maximum 10- $\mu\text{g}/\text{m}^3$ ozone (O₃), during the period from the beginning of the year 2001 to the end of the year 2004, were included in the analysis. Statistical analysis was carried out on the daily number of hospital admissions and admissions for related respiratory diseases. A negative association was found between PM_{2.5} and PM₁₀ and hospital admissions in the order of 10 $\mu\text{g}/\text{m}^3$ O₃. The magnitude of the associations for respiratory admissions was more distinct for the fine particulate matter. The results suggest that fine particulate matter may be an important determinant for respiratory admissions in São Paulo, Brazil, and may be a tool for improved disease surveillance and air pollution control.

Q: How can I compare the strings in array and set the result according to the indices? What I am trying to do is, I have two strings. This is the first string: first="ABCD" second=" " output should be like this: new_first=" " new_second=" " If I find any single space character in the first string and also in the second string, then it should convert the spaces to a single space by removing the spaces. But it should consider only the single space character and not the double and more spaces. I have tried this code, but it is considering all the spaces in both strings, which is not needed. first="ABCD" second=" " for i in range(len(first)): if first[i] == second[i]: second[i] ="
